Old Business:

400 Race Street – Blue Ruin Bar Sign – Appropriateness Determination

Mr. Hamon presented the background of the case, including all prior determinations from Planning & Zoning Commission (Oct. 1, 2019), Historic Preservation Commission (Oct. 17, 2019) and Board of Zoning Appeals (Nov. 20, 2020) which corroborated the fact that the current 67 sf graphic panel at Blue Ruin Bar constitutes a sign.

Mr. Dodd, attorney for Mr. Kyle, then presented his case, explaining that with such small letters, and being so general, the sign as it exists now was “the worst possible advertising” for Blue Ruin, and instead should be considered an artistic expression and celebration of the revitalization of downtown Cambridge.

He then asked that the Commission show leniency and approve the oversized graphic panel as is. Branden Spear took to the podium and testified that the panel was art.

Brian Roche also expressed that even though this was a difficult decision, the Commissioners should consider the positive impact of the graphic panel before its non-compliance or the lack of proper approval process.

Commissioner Oliphant agreed with Vice Chair Morgan, and stated that as an artistic expression, the panel was very attractive, but also explained that approving it as is, after the fact, and accepting the non-compliant process of installation would not be showing consistency nor fairness to the rest of the businesses of Cambridge, would set up a precedent not acceptable., Chairman George Vojtech then presented a few legal cases with illustrations, where courts made determinations about “commercial speech” versus “murals”.
He read through the associated findings to confirm that even without the label “Blue Ruin” the graphic panel featuring a bottle and saying “Cambridge, where good people drink good drinks” being located on the side wall of the Blue Ruin Bar would continue to constitute commercial speech (i.e. a sign), therefore falling under the regulation of a maximum of 50 square feet (per UDC Section 6.5.7.D).
Mr. Hamon reminded the Commission and the public than even if the sign was considered “art”
(or a mural), a full review and approval by HPC PRIOR to installation would have been required.
Chairman Vojtech made a motion to deny the sign “as is” and requested that the sign be either trimmed to the compliant 50 square feet (if cutting borders was the desired action) or be removed entirely and be resubmitted as a new sign (of similar design) reduced proportionally to fit within the 50 sq. ft. maximum.
The applicant was given 10 to 20 business days to come into compliance (weather permitting;
i.e. temperatures allowing installation). Vice Chair Morgan seconded the motion. All approved unanimously.
